

SCHILLER DUCANTO & FLECK

The Future of Family Law Since 1981

DEAR SCHILLER DUCANTO & FLECK CLIENTS:

Like you, we are monitoring the COVID-19 crisis very closely. We are writing to ensure all of our clients that Schiller DuCanto & Fleck is now and will remain open for business. We will be operating via remote access from all three of our offices for the time being but will be maintaining an in office staff to ensure that no business interruption occurs.

We will not be conducting in person meetings in our offices while we are operating via remote access, but we will continue to be available via phone and video conference. Many of you have likely seen that most of our Illinois Courts have adjusted regular operations. This is a dynamic and changing situation, but as leaders in the family law community, we have our fingers on the pulse of what the Courts are doing to address the crisis. As of now, it is safe to assume that only Emergency Matters will be addressed by the Courts for the next several days or weeks. Whether or not a matter constitutes an Emergency is something that will be assessed by your team. All other court dates set during the next several weeks will be reset automatically. Please confer with your individual team to assess what this will mean for your case and in your county.

At Schiller DuCanto & Fleck, we have significant experience with crisis management and we remain committed to serving our client's needs, despite our current challenges. We wish you and your families good health during this difficult time.
